

International Day of Peace at The New School

by Ann Baumgardner

The New School Montessori was the only school in Ohio to be given a peace pole to decorate for this year's observance of the International Day of Peace. This annual celebration was established over 30 years ago by a resolution of the United Nations General Assembly and has been observed throughout the world. Students age 3 to grade 6 created glass art that adorned the pole. Teachers and students assembled around the pole to sing, read poems and to talk about the importance of peace in our world and what they can do to promote peace today.
